FOREWORD

Frederick W. Lovell planned this book and gathered much of the material for it. A year and a half after his death, work was begun again. Constant effort has been made to establish ancestral lines, hitherto incomplete, and to clear up uncertainties. However, there are still uncertainties and omissions.

It is difficult to be consistent in a book of this kind that in the main had to be restricted to heads of families in direct line of descent. Lineages available in print elsewhere have been condensed in order that more space could be given to families not previously worked out. Readers are reminded of the change in the calendar in 1752.

Acknowledgment is made to all who responded to inquiries with information or suggestions. Anyone who has undertaken a similar task can fully understand the keen appreciation with which they were received. The following have been especially helpful: Miss Mary H. Hamilton, Dexter, Maine, Mrs. Ada K. Hunt, Denver, Colorado, Dr. A. A. Whittemore, Wishek, North Dakota and Mr. Earle O. Whittier, Washington, D. C.

INTRODUCTION

The Story of This Book

This book is the result of the family interest of a son in the genealogy of his father, Thomas Lovell, and of his mother, Mary Ellen Ricker. Thomas Lovell came to this country when he became of age; his wife was born in New England. Much of the material in the book was gathered by their son, Frederick W. Lovell. His sister, Lucy E. Lovell, during her visits to England, took many photographs of the ancestral Lovell home and burial places. These pictures, together with a notebook written by their mother, form the basis of researches made in England. A year and a half after the death of Frederick W. Lovell the work on the book was carried on by his wife, who completed the story of the family lines in England and the United States.

The Lovell Name

The history of surnames has ever been a matter of conjecture. For instance, the name Lovell has been spelled in at least six ways: Lovell, Lovel, Lovill, Lovewell, Loffell, Loveill.

In his History of Surnames of the British Isles, the author, C. L'Estrange Ewen, has given an illuminating explanation of such variable spellings. He writes: "We are apt to be amused at the inconsistent spelling of our forefathers, but it must not be forgotten that no vocabularies approaching the authority of the modern dictionary were available until the seventeenth century, and consequently there being no single standard, one variant of a word had as much sanction as another. For names there has never been any reference list whatsoever, and consequently every writer indulged his own fancy at the moment, and as in the middle ages the majority of the people were illiterate, they could not possibly convey the information to a recording scribe, the result being noticeable in the large number of different orthographic renderings of a surname in ancient rolls, and to a lesser extent even yet in our directories.

"All surnames like place-names were originally words with commonsense significations, and it is astonishing to find that, subjected to various corrupting influences, many have become so meaningless as to baffle elucidation by the present-day student. . . . There is only one royal road to the determination of the origin of a surname, and that is to compile an authentic biographical and historical pedigree which dates back to the first assumption of the name."

Ernest Weekley, in The Romance of Names, states that "Lovell, Lovet, often mean little wolf. Both Louvet and Louveau are common French surnames. The name Lovell, in the wolf sense, was often applied to a dog, as in the famous couplet:

'The ratte, the catte, and Lovell, our dogge Rule all England under the hogge'

for which William Collingborne was executed in 1484."

C. L'Estrange Ewen, in a discussion of the French suffixes, says that "-el,- ell, -le, may in many instances be of O.E. origin. . . . Modern surnames are Lovel. . . ." He refers to the "common practice in the eleventh and twelfth centuries and even up to the fourteenth, to latinize personal names, descriptions, and surnames in official records," and mentions in the list, de Lupellis-Lovel. He warns that the Latin "equivalent" often has a meaning entirely different from the original signification, "—consequently a very particular knowledge is required of these freaks of nomenclature to avoid serious omissions and erroneous conclusions." We can only agree with the statement in his preface, "certainty was never more elusive than in this branch of inquiry." *

* From C. L'Estrange Ewen, A History of Surnames of the British Isles. By permission of The Macmillan Company, publishers.

This branch of the Lovell family had lived in the parishes of Swineshead and Roxton in Bedfordshire, and search was begun there by F. G. Emmison, editor of Bedfordshire Parish Registers, and Clerk of Records for the county. He examined the registers of northern Bedford, all the Lovell wills at the Birmingham Probate Registry, and hundreds of miscellaneous documents in the County Record Office.

In the parish register of Roxton, the line is carried back to John Lovell of Chawston whose will (1713) mentions his sons Robert, John and Thomas, and his daughters Elizabeth Ibbott and Susan Reynolds. He left property at Wyboston in the parish of Eaton Socon, Bedfordshire, and there we find recorded the baptisms of Robert, Susan and Mary, the latter not mentioned in the will. There are no other records of the family at Eaton Socon. The other sons, John and Thomas, were born after the family moved to Roxton a few miles away.

John Lovell's daughter, Elizabeth Ibbott, affords an opportunity for surmise about earlier lines. Perhaps she was the Elizabeth Lovell who was baptized at Colmworth, co. Bedford, 20 June 1668, the day before the burial at Thurleigh of her mother, "Elizabeth, wife of John Lovell of Colmworth." The parish of Thurleigh is a short distance from Colmworth. This might identify John Lovell of Roxton with the John Lovell of Colmworth who was assessed in the Hearth Tax of 1666. (Public Record Office, London: Lay subsidies. 243/9 Hearth Tax [Full Assessment] 1666. Parish of Colmworth—"John Loffell, assessed to one hearth.") Colmworth itself presents a difficulty which cannot be surmounted as the original registers are extant only from the beginning of the eighteenth century so that the gap in the Transcripts cannot be filled. The Transcripts or Bishop's Transcripts is the accepted name for the copies of the parish register sent every Easter to the bishop's registry.

The only marriage record found for John Lovell of Colmworth is at Thurleigh 8 April 1667, and his wife's name is Mary Wildman of Little Staughton. Her first name has been verified. But Elizabeth's mother was named Elizabeth, and the mother of the younger children born at Eaton Socon and at Roxton had the same name. It is a temptation to suggest that Mary Wildman's name was Mary Elizabeth Wildman, and that John married, second, an unknown Elizabeth.

The search for the marriage record of John's daughter, Elizabeth, resulted in finding at Bromham, four or five miles away, the marriage of Elizabeth Lovell and John Ibbutt 19 June 1693. (Bedfordshire Parish Registers Vol. XVI, A 20.) Bromham adjoins the parish of Oakley, and there we find a John Lovell who was assessed in 1645 toward the cost of raising Sir Thomas Fairfax's army during the Civil War. (County Record Office, Bedford: D. D.TW 9/1, page 151.) In the parish register of Oakley there is a John Lovell who was married in 1653. We can trace his baptism, his parents' marriage and that of his grandparents in 1591. With many records missing for the period 1645-60 during which England had its Civil War and the Commonwealth, it is difficult to establish the connection with the Lovell family of Oakley. However, the entries from the Oakley parish register are printed here as they may form a basis for future investigation.

Oakley is about five miles from Elstow, the parish south of Bedford where John Bunyan was born in 1628. The population of Oakley in 1801 was 265 and in 1931 was 508. The adjoining parishes are Clapham, Bromham, Stevington, Pavenham and Milton Ernest.

"The parish of Roxton has an area of 2918 acres, of which 1938 acres are arable, 532¾ acres permanent grass and 53 acres woods and plantations. Its western boundary is formed by the river Ouse in the neighborhood of which the land is liable to floods. . . The soil is clay and gravel of which there is a pit to the south of Chawston. Wheat, barley, oats, and beans are the principal crops. . .

The village of Roxton in the extreme south-east of the parish stands some little distance off the main road. It is picturesquely situated at the foot of a hill between the river and the road. The majority of the houses are old and there is no principal village street. The church of St. Mary is in the east of the village which has also a fine Congregational chapel built in 1822. Roxton House standing in a park is an eighteenth century brick building in the south-east. . . Outlying districts of the parish are Chawston hamlet in the north where there is an ancient moat surrounding a modern house which marks the site of Chawston Manor. . "*

The population of the parish in 1801 was 465, and in 1931, 449. The adjoining parishes are Eaton Socon, Tempsford, Blunham, Great Barford, Wilden and Colmworth.

John Lovell of Roxton, Bedfordshire

John Lovell (died 1713) is the earliest ancestor in this line who can be clearly traced. We do not know the date or place of his birth. The question of his relation to the earlier Lovells of Oakley, co. Bedford, has been discussed in the Introduction and possible solutions suggested. At the time of his death his home was at Chawston in the parish of Roxton, county of Bedford. He left property at Wyboston, a hamlet in the southeast of Eaton Socon, the parish just north of Roxton, to his son Robert, and mentioned in his will his sons John and Thomas, and his daughters Elizabeth Ibbott and Susan Reynolds. If we accept the Elizabeth Lovell who was baptized at Colmworth 20 June 1668 as his daughter, the name of his first wife was Elizabeth (buried at Thurleigh, co. Bedford, 21 June 1668). John Lovell's second wife was also named Elizabeth. She was the mother of Robert, Susan and Mary who were baptized at Eaton Socon, and of John, Sarah and Thomas, baptized at Roxton, and possibly of Judith, also. The second Elizabeth was buried 8 September 1704 at Roxton. John Lovell was buried at Roxton 15 May 1713.

The 'll' (the last two letters) have a sort of horizontal stroke through them; that led me to read the word as Lovett, but on more careful examination it is perfectly clear that the word is Lovell, as the signature is quite definite."

Robert Lovell, the son of Robert and Ann (Ayers) Lovell, was baptized 4 September 1757, at Roxton, co. Bedford, and was buried in Roxton churchyard, 15 February 1828. He married at Roxton, 9 November 1784, Ann Addington (baptized 25 November 1753; buried 17 February 1831), the daughter of Peter and Hannah (Wilson) Addington. A Peter Addington was baptized at Tempsford, co. Bedford, 3 July 1726, and buried at Roxton 2 February 1784. He was the son of William and Susan Addington. William (buried 5 December 1762) was churchwarden at Tempsford, 1736-7. Both William and Peter had sons named Sylvester. Possibly Sylvester Addington, who married Elizabeth Newman at Bolnhurst, co. Bedford, 9 December 1675, was William's father.

Robert Lovell was listed in the Land Tax assessments for the county of Bedford, parish of Roxton, 1783—William Metcalfe, proprietor. His name appears also in the lists of volunteers at the time of the threatened French invasion, 6 August 1803, "Lovill, Robert, farmer—age, 46—2 children under 10." The record for Roxton parish was written by Peter Addington, Constable, Robert's father-in-law.

Parish of Swineshead, Bedfordshire

"Swineshead was formerly in Huntingdonshire but in 1888 it was transferred to Bedfordshire. . . The village is in the west of the parish and lies low. The houses of which it consists are mostly old, the Three Horse Shoes Inn dating from the early seventeenth century. . . The present rectory, a modern building, is on the south of the road as it enters the village from the west. The former rectory, now used as a farm house, is an ancient plastered building of brick and timber opposite the church. When it was undergoing restoration in 1864 a copy of the Solemn League and Covenant (signed by the then rector of Swineshead) was discovered in the roof, where perhaps it may have been hidden by the cautious rector of the time. The Manor Farm is new but in a field adjacent is a sixteenth century brick building, now converted into cottages, with traces of a moat. . . The Church of St. Nicholas seems to have been begun about 1330 and carried through with one alteration, the substitution of a west tower for one at first arranged for the north-west. It was probably finished about 1360." *

THOMAS LOVELL, the son of Robert and Ann (Addington) Lovell, was born at Roxton, co. Bedford, 25 January 1798. He married 4 June 1827 Mary Taylor (born 4 December 1801; died 12 March 1845), only daughter of James (died 1840) and Elizabeth Taylor (died 2 August 1853, age 76), who were buried at Great Staughton, Huntingdonshire.

God give her grace thereon to look,
Not only look but understand
That learning is better than house or land.
When house and land is gone and spent,
Then learning is most excelent.

There is a family tradition that Mary Taylor Lovell, previous to her marriage, had kept a flock of geese and thus had accumulated one hundred pounds, which later she applied in part payment on the farm of one hundred and five acres which Thomas Lovell bought at Swineshead. The Lovell farm house located at the end of the village street remained in the family until 1910.

Thomas Lovell died 13 May 1850. The following inscription is taken from his gravestone in Swineshead churchyard:

Affliction sore long time I bore.
Physicians were in vain.
Till Christ my chief gave me relief
And eas'd me of my pain.

The will of Thomas Lovell provided that all of his property should go to his oldest son Robert, who had reached his majority at the time of the death of his father, with the reservation that he should provide for the younger children until each reached his majority, and at that time, should give to each of the sons eight hundred pounds, and to his daughter five hundred pounds. John Lovell

1837 – 1906

John Lovell, the son of Thomas and Mary (Taylor) Lovell, was born at Swineshead, England, 17 June 1837, and died at Odell, Bedfordshire, 22 June 1906. He married 27 November 1860, at Rushden, Northamptonshire, Annie Skinner (1838-1920), the daughter of George Skinner and his first wife, whose surname was Banks. He was churchwarden at Rushden for fifty years and lived to be ninety-seven.

John Lovell and Annie Skinner are thought to have been cousins. Research on this line that had been planned by John R. Lovell was interrupted by the outbreak of war in September 1939. Possibly the connection is through Hannah Lovell, the daughter of Robert and Ann (Addington) Lovell, who married Reuben Banks, Hail Weston, Huntingdonshire, 23 November 1809.

John and Annie (Skinner) Lovell had one son, Robert, who was born 18 December 1862, Cambridgeshire, and died at London 26 January 1909. He married at Bournemouth, 4 August 1890, Ada Frances Ellmers who was born in 1867. Their son, John Robert Lovell, was born 5 January 1893, and married September 1927, Evelyn Annie Joyner Vickers, who was born in 1896, the daughter of George and Annie Vickers. Residence: 78 Weir Road, Clapham, London, S.W. 12, England.

In 1904 he moved to Minneapolis, Minnesota, and engaged in the design and construction of water plants, sewers, irrigation projects, dams and hydro-electric plants as well as government buildings. He became a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers in 1904. His office is at Minneapolis, and his residence is 2247 Hendon Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota.

Frederick William Lovell

(The following memoir was prepared for publication in the records of the American Society of Civil Engineers soon after the death of Frederick W. Lovell, 25 July 1934, by E. W. Crellin. Mr. Lovell was elected a member of the Society 6 June 1906.)

"Frederick William Lovell was born on January 26, 1872. His father, Thomas Lovell, whose birthplace was Swineshead, Bedfordshire, England, came to Canada as a young man and, later, migrated to Towanda in Central Illinois, where he met and married Mary Ellen Ricker. In 1883, the family moved to Iowa and, later, to California.

Frederick William Lovell was the second of five children born on the Towanda farm. He attended the primary schools at Towanda and Gibson, Ill., and at Humboldt, Iowa, and was graduated in 1891 from the Iowa City Academy. He studied Civil Engineering at the State University of Iowa, at Iowa City, Iowa, from which institution he was graduated in 1894, having completed the course in three years with high honors.

He spent the years from his graduation until 1898 as Draftsman with the firms of Purdy and Henderson, of Chicago, Ill.; Brown-Ketcham Iron Works, Indianapolis, Ind.; and the Elmira Bridge Company, Elmira, N. Y.

In 1898, Mr. Lovell began his connection with the McMyler Manufacturing Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, which, later, became the McMyler Interstate Company. For this Company he designed all structural work and had supervision of the details of such in the office. Typical of the work of the Company at this time was the building of twelve ore-conveying bridges, each 450 ft. long, supported on two towers, for the Lorain Steel Company, and the construction of car-dumping machinery for the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad Company. From 1901 until 1922, Mr. Lovell served as Secretary, as Chief Engineer, and as Vice-President of the Company, with supervision of all engineering work, both structural and mechanical, covering a wide range of problems in the design of engines, machinery, steam plants, and electrical apparatus. Many patents in the United States and foreign countries covering improvements in coal and ore-handling machinery, such as car dumpers, locomotive cranes, bridge conveyors, buckets, etc., were issued to him. The outstanding developments in coal and ore-handling devices took place largely within his lifetime, and he made important contributions to them. The Company also designed and fabricated structural steel for bridges and buildings.

Throughout his professional career, Mr. Lovell was a conscientious and tireless worker. His persistence and success in solving unfamiliar technical problems were remarkable. A notable instance of his resourcefulness in time of great stress occurred during the World War, when without previous experience his Company made 8-in. shells for the British and American Governments and became the largest producer of such shells in the United States.

From 1922 until his death, Mr. Lovell was engaged in consulting practice, making a specialty of the design of car-dumping machinery and other appliances for the rapid and economical handling of coal, ore, and similar materials. As already has been intimated, he was a Mechanical Engineer as well as a Civil Engineer, and had from his long experience an intimate knowledge of the mechanical as well as of the structural and economic problems involved in the design of such machinery. He spent much of his time in travel in the United States, Alaska, Mexico, and South America, and in Europe.

His wide experience in his own field and his discernment in the study of commercial and political backgrounds gave his observations great value for his friends and business associates.

Much of his enthusiasm, after the World War and during the depression, was given to assisting young people to obtain their education and training. For many of them Mr. Lovell made possible a college education and an artistic career. A special fondness for young people made him a kindly figure in private life, as his experiences and travels made him a dominating personality as an engineer and executive.

During his entire residence in the City of Greater Cleveland, he was a devoted member of the First Baptist Church. His gifts thereto were numerous, and he gave both of his time and his work, unstinted, during the erection of the new church building in 1929."

Constructing the New Edifice

"One year from the time of the laying of the cornerstone, the building was completed. The chairman of this busy committee was Mr. Frederick W. Lovell who for months might be seen spending whole days walking from one section to another of the rising building, as he followed each detail of the work. . .

The name of Frederick W. Lovell will ever be intimately associated with the erection of this church edifice. Eminently fitted by experience and natural insight, he served as chairman of the Building Committee, a trust which he faithfully executed. As active chairman, he was daily on the ground to see that the construction was speedily and carefully carried on.

His love for the church was evidenced by his constant attention to the smallest detail.

At the end of the year required for building this house of worship, this man of few words concluded his brief report at the annual meeting, with this modest and simple statement: 'The church was completed at somewhat less than the original estimate.'

Only those who are acquainted with the way in which the cost of public buildings almost invariably exceeds all original expectations, and the delays that mark their construction, can fully appreciate the magnitude of his unselfish devotion. For the man so largely responsible for the construction of this church, we shall ever cherish gratitude and love."

Mary E. Adams, Church Editor.

Frederick William Lovell married, 28 June 1899, Eva J. Glass, who was born at Mason City, Iowa, 13 January 1874, the only daughter of John D.[3] (Thomas[2], William[1]) and Alice (Remley) (Alderson) Glass. When she was six the family moved to California, and she attended the schools of Long Beach. On three occasions, in 1904, 1906 and 1911, she went to Europe with her parents. While in England on the first and second trips, she photographed the Lovell house and the church at Swineshead, and gravestones there and at Roxton, Bedfordshire. These pictures have been most helpful in preparing this book. Lucy Lovell is the center of family interest because of her care of her parents and her keen response to her nieces and nephews and all young people.

The Ricker Family

More detailed accounts of the Ricker family may be found in The Wentworth Genealogy, by John Wentworth, 1878; A History of the First Century of Parsonsfield, Maine, edited by J. W. Dearborn, 1888; and the Genealogical Dictionary of Maine and New Hampshire, edited by Charles Thornton Libby, Walter Goodwin Davis and Sybil Noyes, 1928-1938.

"There is good reason for believing that all in this country bearing this name are traceable to the same genealogical tree and that that tree had its roots in the Isle of Jersey. Capt. Joseph Ricker, who died in Parsonsfield, Maine, in 1825, was grandson to one of the emigrants. Whether the two emigrant brothers or only their ancestors were born in Jersey, is not known. One of these, George Ricker, was a resident of Cochecho, now Dover, New Hampshire, in 1670, and was taxed there in 1672. The first earnings he could spare appear to have gone to pay for his brother Maturin's passage to America. Both brothers became residents of Dover, where they raised families and where both were killed by the Indians, 4 June 1706." *

"George Riccar and Maturin Riccar of Cochecho were slain by the Indians. George was killed while running up the lane near the garrison (doubtless Heard's garrison). Maturin was killed in his field, and his little son (Noah) carried away." (The Journal of the Rev. John Pike, 4 June 1706.)

Joseph Ricker

—— – 1772

"Joseph Ricker, son of Maturin, lived first in Somersworth, New Hampshire. He was admitted (with wife Elizabeth) to the Dover, New Hampshire, church, 22 March 1730, and both were afterwards (no date given) dismissed to the Somersworth Church. He was one of the committee for building the first meeting-house in Somersworth in 1729. He afterwards lived in Berwick, Maine. He married (1) 16 November 1720, Elizabeth, daughter of Jabez and Dorcas Garland. . . [Jabez Garland was killed by Indians as he was returning from church on horseback.] He married (2) in Berwick, 17 December 1761, Mary May. [A Gideon May and Mary Stone were married at Berwick, 17 November 1725.] The Somersworth records having been destroyed, and the Berwick church records having commenced in 1755, the absence of dates of birth and baptism of the later children is accounted for. He died at Berwick, 2 December 1772. His will dated 19 January 1771 shows that he was well endowed with worldly substance, mostly in farms, which he distributed among his numerous children. To two of his sons, Tristram and Joseph, he gave his Berwick homestead and his negroes, whose ashes repose in the family burying-ground of their former masters."

WENTWORTH LINE OF DESCENT

ELDER WILLIAM WENTWORTH 1615/6 – 1696/7

TIMOTHY . . . . . – 1719

SAMUEL . . . . . – 1780

DEBORAH WENTWORTH . . 1749 – 1835

The Wentworth Family

Mary Ellen Ricker's great-grandmother was Deborah Wentworth, daughter of Deacon Samuel and Joanna (Roberts) Wentworth, and wife of Joseph Ricker. For more data than is given here, refer to The Wentworth Genealogy, by John Wentworth, 1878.

Elder William Wentworth

"Although it has been sometimes impossible to obtain direct and positive evidence, every circumstance, without exception, has tended to confirm the presumption that William Wentworth, the younger, of Alford, the twenty-first in descent from Reginald the Saxon, was the veritable Elder of early New England history." (Wentworth Genealogy.)

"Elder William, Dover, N.H., age 54 in Sept. 1670, is considered the same, bp. at Alford, co. Lincoln, 15 March 1615/16, son of William and Susanna (Carter) grandson of Christopher and Katherine Marbury. . . . Although the revised edition of The Wentworth Genealogy was published sixty years ago, so well was it done that few additional facts are known. One of a large family connection to come over, young William followed his kinsman, Reverend John Wheelright, to Exeter and Wells before settling permanently at Dover. He signed the Exeter Combination. Preaching at Exeter 1683-1693, but lived in Dover, where in 1689, although over seventy, he is credited with saving the Heard garrison from the Indians. . . . His first (unknown) wife had at least one child; his last wife Elizabeth Knight was living when her father made his will 18 April 1687. He died 15 March 1696/7. Children. . . . Timothy, see York Deeds 12:17." *

Timothy Wentworth

"Timothy, Dover, N.H., Berwick, Me., signed a N.H. petition in August 1692, bought in Dover in April and had land from father in May, 1696; called of Dover, 1702; of Berwick, 1705, where he bought the former Grant homestead from Edward Toogood giving back a mortgage which was released to his sons in 1732. In 1718 he recited that he had a share in his grandfather Ezekiel Knight's lands by virtue of his father's will. . . Will, 3 May-8 July, 1719, names wife Sarah (Cromwell) age 86 in January 1754; 4 children." *

Samuel Wentworth

"Samuel, son of Timothy and Sarah (Cromwell) Wentworth, lived in Berwick, Me., on the old homestead. He was constable in 1731; collector of taxes for several years; and deacon of the north parish church in Berwick, Me., from its organization, 3 April 1755 until his death. He married 29 August 1725 Joanna, daughter of John and Deborah (Church) Roberts of Somersworth, N.H. She was born 20 October 1705. Deacon Samuel died 4 July 1780; his wife died but a few hours after him."

Deborah Wentworth

"Deborah, daughter of Deacon Samuel and Joanna (Roberts) Wentworth, born on the old farm of Timothy in Berwick, Me., 14 August 1749; married 17 December 1767, Joseph Ricker who was born in Berwick, Me., 9 December 1746 and was the son of Joseph Ricker who was the son of Maturin Ricker who came from England with his brother, George Ricker, and was killed by the Indians with him. . . He died in Parsonsfield, Me., 18 October 1825 and she at the same place, 18 February 1835."

The Revolutionary War Service of William Perkins is given as eight months beginning 16 October 1777 in the certified copy from the Revolutionary Rolls of Massachusetts. A previous enlistment of one year is described in his pension data, and this further account is given, in The History of Wells and Kennebunk, by Edward E. Bourne, 1875:

"When the eight months service at Cambridge had expired, many of the soldiers of Capt. Sawyer's company re-enlisted for one year. Others also enrolled in his company; these were principally from Wells. The following were members of it and were in active service twelve months, viz: . . . William Perkins.

"This service was one of great hardship and exposure. They marched to New York, thence to Albany, Lake Champlain, St. Johns, Montreal; thence up to the Cedars sixty miles; thence back to St. Johns, where most of them had the small-pox; thence to Ticonderoga and Albany, Newton and Trenton, where they captured the Hessians; then again to Newton and Trenton, where they were discharged."

The Morrill Family

The Morrill name is often spelled Morrell, and occasionally Morell, Morrall, Morel, Maril, and doubtless has many other versions. Isaac spelled his own name three or four different ways.

Abraham Morrill and his Brother Isaac

Samuel Morrill in the Introduction to Volume II, Morrill Kindred in America, writes:

"It is curious that we have never learnt Abraham Morrell's age through old legal documents. We think him younger than Isaac because he married much later and because his name was not on the list taking oath to the King, as was Isaac's, before sailing from England. Perhaps if Isaac was the head of the family his oath was sufficient for all.

Now aside from Savage's guess, we do not know that Abraham came in the 'Lyon' and we do not know that he did not have a first wife.

My reason for saying so is because on January 7th, 1632/3, he was taxed for a good amount of paling in Newtown (Cambridge). The early Puritans looked askance at bachelors living alone and it is thought that his paling was a fence to enclose a large house lot. If that were so, it looks as if he had a wife or some female member of his family living with him. On the other hand he was granted a house lot in Salisbury years before he married Sarah Clement, so it is all merely conjecture. Yet he was probably at least twice as old as Sarah which would make him about forty at their marriage, an advanced age for a man's first marriage in those days.

The 'Lyon' brought 123 passengers, 50 of whom were children. Of the 73 adult passengers we know only 33, they being the men who took the oath before sailing. . .

Of the 33 known names, many settled in Cambridge and Roxbury and the others also in Massachusetts although none of them apparently in Boston proper.

As the 'Lyon' passengers were of the Braintree or Hooker's Company, said to have come mostly from near Braintree, Essex, I have devoted most of my research to this county, although I have searched all England during ten visits to that lovely land.

Hatfield Broad-oak, Essex, Izack Morrell's Home

The best clue to the actual residence of our ancestors was discovered by the well-known American genealogist, J. Gardner Bartlett of Boston, who found a document in the Public Record Office, London, written in Latin, as many legal papers were in former days. *

This document acknowledged the sale from Isaac Morrell and Sarah his wife, to John Momford, Jr., of 'a messuage, a garden, an orchard, and one acre of pasture with appurtenances in Kings Hatfield, alias Hatfield Broad-Oak' for sixty pounds sterling before the King's Judges at Westminster.

Trinity term was the three weeks between May 22d and June 12th. Our Isaac Morrell took the oath to the King shortly after, on June 22d, the day the 'Lyon' sailed from London to Boston, arriving in America September 16th, 1632."

"The first mention found of Abraham Morrill is January 1632/3 at Cambridge, where he was a proprietor in 1636. He was a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, 1638; fined in 1641 for 'selling his servant his time'; a planter, mill-wright and iron-founder. He married 10 June 1645 Sarah Clement. He died 20 June, 1662 while on a visit to Roxbury, Mass., and was buried in the "Old

* Feet of Fines, Trinity Term, 8 Charles I, (Essex) File 416[1]

First Burying Place." Will, 18 June; 14 October 1662."*

"The Morrill homestead was located on the Green at East Salisbury, now Salisbury, and within a year after his death the town bargained with his widow for its purchase 'for the use of the ministry.' Sarah (Clement) Morrill married 8 October, 1665 Thomas Mudgett. . .

"Through researches conducted in England by request of Percival W. Clement, Governor of Vermont, the ancestry was discovered of Sarah Clement, wife of Abraham Morrill.

"Richard Clement, b. about 1506, d. 1571/2 (will) married Elizabeth, who survived him. He was buried in the church at Croft, Leicestershire, his home. Of their five children the eldest was Robert Clement, d. 1606, married first, Alice, who died 1585, married second Margaret who survived him. . . By his first wife he had all his eight children. The fifth child was Richard Clement, b. 1570, d. 1617. He married 1594/5, at Cosby, Agnes Fellows, a widow who died 1619. They had two children, Robert and Anne.

"This Robert was Judge Robert Clement, b. 1595, d. 1658 . . . a founder of Haverhill, Mass., and father of our Sarah, b. 1626, d. 1694, who came to America with her father and most of her family in 1642. . .

"Robert married before 1615 Lydia who was buried in a tomb of the church at Ansley, Warwickshire, March 1641/2 where they had been living since 1624. In 1617 their home was at Huncote, Leicestershire. Robert married second in America before 1651, Judith, who was living in 1669, having married, second, John Whitney of Watertown, Mass. Lydia was the mother of all Robert's children. . .

The Clement arms are illustrated in colors in The Clement Genealogy, 2 volumes, by Percival Wood Clement, 1927". †

Isaac Morrill

1646 – 1713

Isaac Morrill was born at Salisbury, Massachusetts, 10 July 1646, the first of the nine children of Abraham and Sarah (Clement) Morrill; chose William Osgood guardian April 1666; married 14 November 1670 Phebe Gill, born 6 January 1649/50, the daughter of John and Phebe (Buswell) Gill. "Isaac and Phebe Morrill were members Salisbury Church 1687, and both signed Bradbury petition 1692. He signed petition of 1680. He was selectman 1693/4, town treasurer and representative 1696-7 and later; left much property including 'armour' worth thirty-five pounds, books, etc. Various signatures, 1680-1706 prove that he wrote a fine hand. He and his father and uncle made many weapons and much armor, iron, and metal work of all kinds used in churches and other buildings. He died 17 October 1713; will 12 January; 26 November 1713; wife Phebe mentioned. A Phebe Morrill died 6 May 1714."

Jacob Morrill

1677 – 1754

Jacob Morrill, the fifth child of Isaac and Phebe Morrill, was born 25 May 1677 at Salisbury, Massachusetts; married (1) 4 December 1701, Elizabeth[3] Stevens (John[2] John[1]); (2) 5 January 1722/3, Elizabeth Dalton. Will 1 December; 25 March 1754; wife Elizabeth mentioned. Twelve children all by the first wife. Sergt. Jacob Morrill kept a "Garrison House" in Salisbury. Extracts from an Order Book of Capt. Henry True: "Commissioned 29 October 1696. Four soldiers: Jacob Morrell . . . for release four at Wells (Maine)."

Samuel Morrill

Samuel Morrill was the fourth child of Jacob and Elizabeth (Stevens) Morrill. He was born at Salisbury, Massachusetts, 27 September 1705. He was an innholder and husbandman in South Hampton, New Hampshire; married at the Second Salisbury Church, 12 December 1728, Hannah Osgood, born 1 July 1709, the daughter of William[4] Osgood (William[3] John[2] William[1]) and Hannah (Colby) Osgood. Hannah (Osgood) Morrill was admitted to the South Hampton Church about 1742, and dismissed to Epping, New Hampshire church, 16 May 1762, when, it is thought, she went to Epping to live with her children. Yet Katharine Morrill states that Hannah was the widow of Captain Abraham Brown of South Hampton 26 March 1761.

Samuel's will, dated 4 December 1754, gave land in Nottingham, New Hampshire to his sons Levi, Oliver, and Abel. The 26th February 1755, Judge Wiggin appointed Ebenezer Morrill guardian of Abel, and Mrs. Morrill guardian of Samuel. All the children except Levi and Oliver were minors at the time of their father's death, and Samuel and Jeremiah were under fifteen years of age. The births of the first four children are recorded at Salisbury, South Hampton being a part of Salisbury until 1742. Hoyt lists eleven children.

Levi Morrill

1731 – 1810

Levi Morrill, the first of the three by that name in our direct line, was called Deacon, his son, Captain, and his grandson, Levi, third. He was born at Salisbury, Massachusetts, 17 November 1731, the first of the children of Samuel and Hannah (Osgood) Morrill. Levi married (1) 9 May 1754, Mary (Molly) Currier, daughter of Jacob[4] (Samuel[3] Deacon Thomas[2] Richard[1]) and Mary (Barnard) Currier. (Refer to the Genealogy of Richard Currier of Salisbury and Amesbury, Massachusetts, by Harvey Lear Currier, 1910.) Molly Currier was born 24 February 1735/6 at Salisbury, and died 11 April 1802. She was buried in the cemetery of East Readfield, Maine.

Deacon Levi married (2) at Readfield (intentions, 17 December 1802) Dinah Johnson, the widow of Joseph Johnson, and daughter of Jonathan and Dinah (Bean) Dudley of Exeter and Brentwood, New Hampshire.

Levi Morrill was called Mariner in 1757 when he bought part of the iron works at Crawley's (Brentwood); in 1761 he bought land between Crawley's and the meeting-house, which was part of the 83 acres he sold to his cousin William Morrill and which William bequeathed to his son Jonathan Trask. In 1840 and later, Frederic Robinson lived on the farm, on which was a painted brick house.

Levi and his wife were dismissed from the South Hampton, New Hampshire Church to the Brentwood Church 5 July 1763. In 1771 they left the Congregational Church and helped organize the Baptist Church, of which he was a deacon.

He was a selectman in 1779, a member of the New Hampshire House of Representatives in 1784 and 1785; in 1785 he voted against having a sermon preached at commencement of the next General Court. He, as well as Abraham, William and Abel, all of Brentwood, signed the "Association Test" in 1776, "promising to oppose the British with arms."

In 1792 or 1793 Deacon Levi moved to Readfield, Maine. He was probably a member of "the Baptist Church that once stood in the old cemetery at East Readfield" (History of Winthrop, Maine, by Everett S. Stackpole, pref. 1925). This church was established by Elder Isaac Case. It is not in existence, and the records were taken west. *

According to family tradition Deacon Levi accompanied his youngest son, David, when he moved to Farmington and Chesterville, Maine, about 1800, and died at Chesterville 14 March 1810.

Levi Morrill

Levi Morrill, Jr., was called Captain in family papers, and in the History of Kennebec County, Maine, 1892. His military service has not been found. He has been mistaken for the Revolutionary soldier, Levi Morrill, of Epping, New Hampshire, adjoining Brentwood. Pension papers of the latter have been included in the Addenda in order that the separate identity may be established.

Levi, Jr., was born at Brentwood, 20 August 1762, the son of Deacon Levi and Molly (Currier) Morrill; died at Dixfield, Maine, 9 October 1838. He married at Brentwood, 1 February 1787 Bathsheba Johnson, who was born 8 July 1765, the daughter of Joseph and Anna (Lane) Johnson. She died at Dixfield 28 February 1846.

Captain Levi moved to Readfield (then Winthrop), Maine previous to 1790 (Maine Census of 1790). He handled much real estate in Readfield selling from 1801 to 1817 when he deeded his son, Levi, third, the easterly part of Lot 126 for five hundred dollars (Kennebec Deeds, Vol. XXXIII.)

Levi Morrill

Levi Morrill, 3rd, was born at Brentwood, New Hampshire, 9 December 1789. He was the son of Levi, Jr. (Captain Levi) and Bathsheba (Johnson) Morrill. The family moved to Readfield (then Winthrop), Maine, soon after his birth. He married (1) 20 March 1814 (intentions 15 February 1814), at Readfield, Abigail Whittemore, daughter of Ebenezer and Nancy (Weston) Whittemore. Abigail was born 2 October 1796 at Livermore (or Jay), Maine, and died at Dexter, Maine, 20 October 1833. She was buried in Green Cemetery, Dexter. Levi married (2) 20 May 1834, Dorcas Mason, who was born 4 November 1805, and died in Marshall county, Illinois, 24 August 1855.

Levi Morrill's name is given in a list of soldiers from Readfield in the War of 1812, in the History of Kennebec County, Maine, 1892. In response to an inquiry, the Adjutant General of Maine wrote: "It appears from the records contained in the Maine Militia Rolls that Levi Morrill served as a musician in Captain George Waugh's Company of Militia, in Lieutenant-Colonel Ellis Sweet's Regiment, raised in Readfield, and in service at Wiscasset and vicinity from the 12th to the 28th of September, 1815. The above appears to be the Levi Morrill referred to in the Kennebec County History, page 117."

Levi Morrill moved from Readfield to Dexter, probably soon after his first marriage. He and his wife were charter members of the First Baptist Church of Dexter, organized 16 March 1825. He was the first deacon of that church, serving from 1825 to 1839. The History of Maine Baptists, by Burrage, records that Levi Morrill was treasurer of the Penobscot Association for sixteen years, 1826-1842. His grandson, Thomas A. Chandler, presented a window in his memory to the First Baptist Church of Dexter, which was installed in 1925.

In the spring of 1855 Levi and his family went out to Illinois, and settled near his son-in-law, William Ricker, in La Prairie township, Marshall county. He died there 3 June 1855. Levi, his second wife Dorcas, their daughter Ann, and Hannah, first wife of his son Weston, were all buried in the Baptist cemetery near Wyoming, Illinois. The date on his gravestone, 1865, is thought to be incorrect as his age was given on the stone as sixty-five years, six months and twenty-four days, and that accords with the date of his birth in family records, and in those of Brentwood and Readfield. His second wife is known to have survived him, and the date of her death is 24 August 1855.

Joseph Johnson was the son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Shepard) Johnson of Hampton, New Hampshire. He was born 10 April 1734 at Hampton, and died 8 October 1794 at Readfield, Maine. He married (1) 28 February 1760, Anna Lane, who was born 24 March 1741, died 2 February 1780, the daughter of Joshua[2] (William[1]) and Bathsheba (Robie) Lane of Hampton.

Joseph Johnson and his wife were admitted to the Congregational Church of Brentwood, New Hampshire, in 1761. His name appears in the list of deacons "before 22 August 1774." He was "from Hampton 1760; Crown Point 1762, To Hampton 1785. A tanner." (Annals of the Brentwood, N. H., Congregational Church and Parish, by Benjamin A. Dean, 1889.) He signed the Test papers in Brentwood, 3 September 1776, promising "to oppose the British with arms." (New Hampshire Revolutionary Documents, 30:21). His grave in the East Readfield, Maine, cemetery has an S.A.R. marker.

The Congregational Church of Winthrop has no record of his membership. Yet his gravestone is marked

The Whittemore Family

Mary Ellen Ricker's grandmother was Abigail Whittemore, daughter of Ebenezer and Nancy (Weston) Whittemore. Information about this family has been supplied by Mr. Earle O. Whittier of Washington, D. C., and Dr. A. A. Whittemore of Wishek, North Dakota, author of A Genealogy of the Livermore Falls Branch of the Whittemore Family. The manuscript of this genealogy was photographed by Russell Reid, curator of the State Historical Society, Bismarck, North Dakota. The original films are deposited with the State Historical Society. Additional copies may be reproduced by request, at cost, and delivered unbound.

By permission of Dr. Whittemore, the following sketches of the early English ancestors and the American line, to the first Jonathan, are reprinted from his book.

"The Whittemores were originally seated at 'Whytemere' on the northeast side of the parish of Bobbington in the Manor of Claverly, County of Salop, England. A place called Whit-i-more, which is a modern looking farm house and which has also been spelled 'Whittemore' is now located in the county of Salop, but the greater part is in Staffordshire. The family of Whitmore has held in fee simple this place since the signing of the great charter of Runnymede by King John in 1215. (In fact much before this as will be shown.) In early times the proprietors were known as 'The Lords of Whytemere.' The place is still owned by direct descendants of the family.

The name Whytemere is taken from the Saxon and means White Meadow. Over forty variations in its spelling have been discovered. . . . The spelling of the name has been fairly constant within the three branches immigrating to America: the Whittemores, the Whitmores and the Wetmores. While these are three distinct families in this county, all of them are derived from the same English source. This is a fact no longer in controversy and is shown by the chart attached. [Not reprinted here.]

The name Whittemore takes its origin in England about 1086, from two distinct sources or families. One Saxon, the other Norman French. Both feudal barons of the times. First, the Saxon, Richard the Forester who had Whytemere from the king, and had for a tenant, Ulfac[1], who had a son, Alwin[2]. He had a son, Arnulf[3], who in turn left two daughters, Avisa[4] and Julia[4], her sister.

At this point the Norman Baron, William de Botrell, enters the line by a marriage with Avisa[4] de Whytemere taking her name after the property, and is then known as William de Whytemere.

The Botrell family takes English origin from an unknown Norman baron, de Botrell[1], during the Conquest in 1086. He had Peter[2] de Botrell of Staffordshire who had Ralph[3], 1152-71. He had two sons, Ralph[4] de Botrell and William[4] de Botrell. The latter as stated above, married Avisa[4] de Whytemere taking her name. They were the progenitors of what later became the Thurstanton branch of the Whittemore family in England. Robert[7] de Whytemere, the seventh of this line, married Ada de Walleshull. They sold all of the lands and titles of the Whytemere Manor to John[5] de Botrell de Whytemere who became Sir John de Whytemere. . . Robert[7] and Ada Walleshull his wife, had other property and became the head of the Thurstanton branch, a record of which is complete to date. Now, retracing to Ralph de Botrell, the son of Ralph[3] and brother of William[4] who married Avisa[4]. He, Ralph[4], married and had Sir John[5] who bought Whytemere from Robert and Ada. Sir John married 1st. Ursula, daughter of William Bagnold; married, 2nd. Agness, and had two sons, John[6] de Whytemere, his heir and the head of the main or Staffordshire line, and William[6] de Whytemere styled 'Arm' who married Alice the daughter of Robert Ferrars, Lord of Tamworth. They had Richard[7] Whitmore who became the head of the Caunton branch, and his brother Philip[7] who was the progenitor of the very distinguished Claverly branch of the family.

Not only the Whittemores but the Whitmores and the Wetmores of this country are descendants of the Caunton branch of the English family.

I will now retrace to the beginning and bring this Caunton branch down to the present date, dropping all factors which do not directly pertain to our own line of descent, in accordance with the opinion of Mrs. Jennette A. Whittemore-Ramsay of Worcester, Massachusetts, a genealogist of the D.A.R., and Mr. D. J. Whittemore of Chicago, the late Chief Engineer of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway. He made extensive original investigations and researches some years later than any other authority of whom we know. I have been in direct correspondence with Mrs. Ramsay and have her correspondence with Mr. Whittemore. To him belongs the credit of finding what I believe to be the real connection between the Hitchin family from which we are descendant, and the other English families. Other investigations had brought the other English branches down to their time, but were unable to definitely fix the exact connection with certainty. The Claverly was the branch usually cited in detail.

The following is extracted from the appended chart designed by Mrs. J. A. W. Ramsay from data received from Mr. D. J. Whittemore, together with her own investigations:

1st Gen. Unknown Norman Baron. De Botrell, could without doubt be traced back many generations in France. The first we hear of him is during the latter part of the Conquest, 1086. He had:

2nd Gen. Peter de Botrell, m. unknown. He was an old man in 1154. He had:

3rd Gen. Ralph de Botrell, m. unknown, 1152-71. He had William de Botrell who married Avisa de Whytemere; and his brother:

4th Gen. Ralph de Botrell, m. unknown. 1171-1200. He had:

5th Gen. Sir John[5] de Botrell de Whytemere, m. Ursula, daughter of William Bagnold; m. 2nd Agness. Was an adult in 1252. Died before 1276. He bought Whytemere with all lands and titles from Robert[7] and Ada Walleshull of the Thurstanton branch. (Mr. D. J. Whittemore has a copy of the original deed, written in old law Latin and explains a lot that was hitherto largely conjecture.) He had: John de Whytemere who m. Margerie and became the head of the main or Staffordshire line; and his brother:

6th Gen. William de Whitmore, styled "Arm," m. Alice, daughter of Robert Ferrars, Lord of Tamworth. 1272-1301. They had two sons, Philip who became the head of the Claverly branch, and his heir:

7th Gen. Richard Whitmore, 1350; m. Susannah, daughter of Philip Draycot. They became the progenitors of the Caunton branch. They had:

8th Gen. Philip Whitmore, 1383; m. Thomasana, daughter of Richard Okeover. They had:

9th Gen. Richard Whitmore, 1377-99; m. 1st, daughter of Sir Richard Bagot; m. 2nd, daughter of Sir Richard Devereaux; m. 3rd, daughter of Simon Harcourt. He had:

10th Gen. Nicholas Whitmore, m. Anne, daughter of Thomas Aston of Tixal, co. Staff., and had:

11th Gen. Anthony Whitmore, m. Christina, daughter of Nicholas Vaux, and had:

12th Gen. William Whitmore, m. unknown and had:

13th Gen. John de Whitmore of Caunton, co. Notts; m. Alice, daughter of Robert Blyton of Caunton, co. Notts. A noble family. Coat of arms. They had:

14th Gen. Robert Whitmore of Caunton, co. Notts; d. 1540; m. 1st, Catherine Claye; m. 2nd, Alice Atwoode. They had 12 children, the fourth of whom was:

15th Gen. Charles Watmore of Tuxford, co. Notts., d. 1568; m. unknown. He had:

16th Gen. Thomas Whittamore of Hitchin, who was one of 12 children. He is the father of our first American ancestor. He died 1649 at Hitchin. His brother Roger is the grandfather of both Thomas of Middletown, Connecticut, progenitor of the Wetmores and of Francis, the head of the Whitmores in this country who died in Cambridge, Massachusetts, 1685. His oldest son Thomas was our first American ancestor who came to this country in 1641-42; he had another son, John of Stamford, Connecticut, who came over in 1639 and was killed by the Indians in 1649. He left no children.

First American Generation

THOMAS WHITTEMORE, son of Thomas[16], above, of Hitchin, England, who died there in 1649; settled in Charlestown, Massachusetts, in that part which was called Malden but is now named Everett. The parish records of Hitchin show that his son John was born there, 1638. (There were two sons named John. The second is referred to here.) The Charlestown records show that Thomas bought a meadow from Rev. John Cotton of Boston, in 1645, showing that he came to this country between these two dates, most likely in 1641. He was baptized in Hitchin 1593; died in Malden, 25 May 1661; married (1) Sarah, who died at Hitchin 31 October 1616; married (2) 14 April 1623, Sarah Deardes. She was buried at Hitchin 17 November 1628. He married (3), Hannah, at Hitchin. She was 50 years old in 1662 and married (2) a Benjamin Butterfield at Chelmsford, Massachusetts, 3 June 1663, two years after the death of her first husband. She was born 1612. He had 13 children.

Daniel Whittemore

1633 – 1683

Daniel Whittemore was the fourth child and second son of Thomas[1] and his third wife Hannah. He was his father's principal heir and received the dwelling house. Born in Hitchin, England, 31 July 1633; died in Malden, 11 May 1683; married Mary Mallens, daughter of Richard Mallens of Charlestown, 7 March 1672. She died 18 November 1683. They had seven children.

Daniel Whittemore

1663 – 1756

Daniel Whittemore, born 27 April 1663, son of Daniel of Charlestown and Malden. Farmer. He received the old dwelling house and homestead at his father's death, which he in turn left to his son Daniel. He married Lydia Bassett, a sister of his brother John's wife, Ruth, 1688. (They were "daughters of Joseph Bassett, son of the first comer, William, who came over in the Fortune in 1621"; lived at Duxbury, Mass.)

Daniel died 21 September 1756. Lydia died 6 April 1755, at 84 years of age. They had ten children.

Jonathan Whittemore

Jonathan Whittemore was the seventh child and fourth son of Daniel and Lydia (Bassett) Whittemore. He was born 11 April 1705; married Sarah Woodcock, 10 April 1735. He was from Malden, Massachusetts, at the time of his marriage, and afterwards lived at Hopkinton, Dedham and Needham, Massachusetts.

Sarah Woodcock may have been the daughter of Jeremiah and Mary (Metcalf) Woodcock, both of Dedham. They were married 5 January 1699. Mary Metcalf was the daughter of Michael and Elizabeth Metcalf. Jeremiah Woodcock and his wife had 12 children; one was named Sarah. A son, Michael, born 1 December 1711, was the eighth child and next older than Sarah. He married Hannah Whittemore, sister of Jonathan, the same day that Jonathan married Sarah Woodcock. (New England Historical and Genealogical Register, 6:174, and George Kuhn Clarke of Needham.) Sarah Woodcock Whittemore was admitted to the church at Needham in November, 1740, with three children. "Mrs. Sarah Whittemore, wife of Jonathan, taught seven weeks in the summer of 1759." (Dedham Historical Register, 14:96, Schools and Teachers in Needham.) Dr. A. A. Whittemore states that Jonathan and Sarah had eight children, but he knew only two at the time.

Children:

i Jonathan Whittemore, b. 7 November 1737; bap. 9 November 1740; m. Eunice Smith of Needham, 20 April 1762. (See further.)

ii Sarah Whittemore, bap. 9 November 1740; m. (?) William Mills (First Church of Needham); dau. Sarah b. 30 May 1764.

iii Elizabeth Whittemore, bap. 9 November 1740.

iv Israel. Dr. Whittemore says "He was one of the original proprietors of Jay township, Maine, and was one of a committee of three to make its survey in 1773. There is no absolute proof of the relationship of this man, but I have no doubt of it."

v Esther, d. 20 November 1756. (Records of the First Church of Needham.) "Esther, daughter of Jonathan Whittemore died."

vi Susannah. "Married 5 November 1767 in Newton, Massachusetts: Jeremiah Woodcock, Jr., and Susannah Whittemore of Needham." (From Records of the First Church of Needham.)

Jonathan Whittemore, Jr.

Jonathan Whittemore, Jr., was born at Needham, Massachusetts, 7 November 1737, the son of Jonathan and Sarah (Woodcock) Whittemore. He married at Needham First Church, 20 April 1762, Eunice Smith. George K. Clarke suggests that she might have been the daughter of Ithamar and Elizabeth (Parmentor) Smith. They had a daughter Eunice, born in Needham, 25 March 1742. One of her brothers was Ebenezer. Jonathan lived at Needham until some time after the Revolution. "Mrs. Coller . . . had a school twelve weeks in 1770 in Wellesley. That summer she boarded with Jonathan Whittemore, Jr." (Dedham Historical Register: Schools and Teachers in Needham.)

According to family tradition Jonathan served seven years in the Revolution, having been taken prisoner by the British while on the sloop "Charming Polly," 16 May 1777, and confined at Old Mill Prison until exchanged. Dr. A. A. Whittemore thinks he may have gone to Maine at once after his release from military prison without reporting and obtaining a regular discharge. He lived at Jay and Livermore Falls, Maine. Stephen Allen and W. H. Pilsbury in The History of Methodism in Maine, 1796-1886, report that among the members of the first class in East Jay, 1804, were Mrs. Sally Dascomb, Mrs. Eunice Whittemore and Mrs. Abigail Weston. Jonathan Whittemore died at Jay, 1 March 1818.

Children:

i Timothy Whittemore, b. 7 September 1763, Needham, Massachusetts; bap. Needham First Church

23 September 1770. He enlisted in the Continental Army in July 1780 and served one year.

Ebenezer Whittemore

1772 – 1837

Ebenezer Whittemore was born at Needham, Massachusetts, 16 December 1772, the son of Jonathan Jr., and Eunice (Smith) Whittemore. He married, possibly at Livermore or Jay, Maine, Nancy J. Weston (1775-1852). (See further.) Ebenezer owned land in Jay near Stone's Corner. Stephen Allen and W. H. Pilsbury in The History of Methodism in Maine, 1796-1886 state that: "the first quarterly meeting appointed at Livermore Falls was in 1815, . . . held in the barn of Mr. Whittemore, a half a mile from the Falls on the road to Stone's Corner." Ebenezer and Nancy spent most of their lives at Dexter, Maine, and he died there 1 December 1837, and was buried at Livermore Falls.

THE WESTON FAMILY

The Weston Family

It had been thought that Nancy Weston, who married Ebenezer Whittemore in 1795, was the daughter of Isaac Weston. Efforts to find an Isaac Weston in the vicinity of Livermore and Jay, Maine, have not been successful.

An account of the death of Nancy's father at a Falling Bee, was found in Notes of Livermore in Androscoggin County, Maine. 1874. His first name is not given nor the date of his death. Mention is made of the marriage of one of his daughters to Eben Whittemore. It is stated that his youngest son, Jonas Weston, was a Methodist minister, and afterwards state senator from Penobscot county, Maine. Yet the records in the Maine State Library give the name of Jonas Weston's father as Abram.

Abraham Weston is listed in the 1790 census of Maine, Lincoln county, Rockmeeko town, on the east side of the river. The inventory of his estate is dated 2 September 1801, and his widow Abigail was administratrix.

Abraham Weston may have been a cousin of Joseph Weston who came to Canaan, Maine, from Concord, Massachusetts, in 1772. (History of the old towns Norridgewock and Canaan, by J. W. Hanson, 1849.) At Concord we find the birth of Abraham Wesson (Weston), son of Timothy and Abigail Wesson, 29 October 1738 (Concord, Massachusetts, Vital Records), and his marriage to Abigail Alline (Allen) 2 February 1764 (Lincoln, Massachusetts, Vital Records). Abigail Allen was the daughter of Benjamin and Eunice Allen, and was born 26 June 1742.

The children of Abraham and Abigail Weston listed in the Vital Records of Lincoln are:

i Abraham Weston, b. 6 May 1764; bap. 15 July 1770.
ii Hepzibah Weston, bap. 8 May 1768.
iii Alpheus Weston, b. 25 December 1772.
iv Anna (Nancy (?)) Weston, b. 30 June 1775.
v Eunice Weston, b. 6 August 1779.
vi Lucy Weston, b. 24 December 1781.
vii Jonas Weston, b. 23 October 1784.

These names give further support to the theory that Nancy's father was Abraham Weston, not Isaac, since two of the children of Nancy and Ebenezer Whittemore were Alpheus and Jonas. In the record at Jay, Maine, of the birth of Alpheus Whittemore, 2 December 1799, his mother's name is given as Anna and his father's, Ebenezer Whittemore.

Timothy Weston, Abraham's father, may have been the son of John and Mary (Bryant) Weston, who was born at Reading, Massachusetts in 1704, and grandson of John and Sarah (Fitch) Weston. John Weston[1] came to Salem, Massachusetts, from England in 1644, and in 1652 he went to Reading. (Genealogical History of the Town of Reading, Massachusetts, by Lilley Eaton.)

Pension Papers of Levi Morrill of Epping, New Hampshire

New Hampshire Historical Society

Concord, N. H., November 25, 1938

W24016 New Hampshire Service.

Morrill, Levi

Elizabeth, widow

September 1, 1832 Levi Morrill of Northfield, New Hampshire, seventy-one years of age, deposed:

that he enlisted August 1, 1776, at Epping, N. H., where he then resided under Capt. Timothy Clement, Col. Pierce Long, New Hampshire Militia, for one year; served out his term and was verbally discharged.

Levi Morrill

September 19, 1831, Robert Clark of Newmarket, N. H., testified that he was commissioned Ensign August 1, 1776, in Capt. Timothy Clement's company; enlisted Levi Morrill and knows that he served faithfully one year in the company.

Robert Clark

Claim allowed.

August 11, 1838, Elizabeth Morrill of Northfield, N. H., seventy-three years of age, deposed:

that she is the widow of Levi Morrill, Revolutionary Pensioner, to whom she was married in March, 1783; and that her husband died November 3, 1835.

Signed by mark.

September 6, 1838, the Town Clerk of Epping, N. H., certified that the marriage of Levi Morrill and Elizabeth Page, March 27, 1783, is recorded on the books of the town.

Nath. Morrill,
Town Clerk.

August 13, 1838, Nathaniel Gale of Gilmanton, N. H., seventy years of age, testified to the continued widowhood of Elizabeth Morrill whom he has known more than thirty-five years, living only seven miles from her.

Nath'l Gale.

Claim allowed, as were her claims made May 13, 1843, while a resident of Gilmanton, N. H., and September 20, 1848, while still a resident of Gilmanton, eighty-three years of age, when her mark was witnessed by Daniel M. Gale and Filinda W. Morrill, the last Certificate being 3970, Portsmouth, New Hampshire Agency, issued February 22, 1849, Act of February 2, 1848.

In a letter on file in the case from Daniel Gale dated Gilmanton, August 10, 1835, it is stated that "the Legislature of the state of Maine has granted to the Revolutionary soldiers and such as represent them two hundred acres of land each." He adds that Gilford P. O. is now his address, and attached is a slip stating on one side: There is no roll of Col. Poor's regiment in the Secretary's Office.

R. Metcalf, Secretary of State.

On the other side is

Daniel Gale, Esq.
Gilmanton, N. H.

Napoleon B. G—

In another letter from the same Daniel Gale, dated Gilmanton, May 16, 1843, he refers to an application for pension of Ruth (Page) Shaw of Epping, N. H., on account of the service of her husband John Shaw, to whom she was married in 1783 and who died in 1826 (N.H.W24951) and states:

"Shaw and I married sisters; he requested my opinion as to a pension. I stated to him it would be useless for him to try, for his property then was over $2000.00 clear of debts. This was in April, 1820. He then stated to me that he ought to have a pension for he served as Drummer in 1776 at Portsmouth, N. H., also at Rhode Island and other places."

(This name is given in both the List of 1835 and New Hampshire State Papers, Volume XXX,* as Merrill, Levi, but the man signed his own application Levi Morrill.

Elizabeth, his widow, aged seventy-six years, was living in 1840 at Sanbornton, N. H., with Willoughby Durgin.

* New Hampshire Revolutionary Pension Records, Vol. XXX, pages 294-298.

There is no other Revolutionary Pensioner, named Levi Morrill, from any state. There is a Merrill, Levi, whose widow Jerusha, living in Scarborough, Me., obtained a pension in 1846, while eighty-eight years of age, on account of his services on the Bagaduce Expedition and other Massachusetts service. She, then Jerusha Milliken, was married to Levi Merrill, at Scarborough, in 1781, and her husband died in 1824 (Mass. W23957). This is the only Revolutionary Pensioner named Levi Merrill in the files. B. M. D.)
